

Community Engagement Consultant to support “Coalition for a Safer Albuquerque” community-led overdose prevention policy agenda

About Vital Strategies

Vital Strategies, a global health organization, is the lead implementation partner in the Bloomberg Overdose Prevention Initiative and is working in 7 states including New Mexico to achieve an equitable reduction in overdoses. We partner with governments, providers, and communities to support health-centered solutions. We deliver our support through technical assistance from a core team of experts, embedded staff within government agencies to implement projects, grantmaking to fund direct services and organizational capacity building, and paid and earned media campaigns. We work to establish effective policy and program models that are adaptable across the country, with a focus on the people most at risk for overdose, including those harmed by decades of failed punitive approaches to drug use. We advance interventions oriented towards health and harm reduction, that engage and support rather than criminalize and punish people who are using drugs. Vital’s engagement in settlement work is comprised of various collaborative activities with our Bloomberg partners, national organizations, and state-level decision-makers and CBOs through which we leverage our subject matter expertise, funding and network resources to advance the integration and adoption of harm reduction approaches and evidence-based, overdose prevention practices in the planning and implementation of settlement-funded strategies and programming.

The crisis of overdose is affecting US communities everywhere. Progress against the still rising rates will require leadership across levels of government, and from communities, providers, institutions, and advocates. Leadership must include people who use drugs. We strive to promote innovation, improve quality, build scale, and ensure sustainability, grounded in data and evidence, and focused on racial equity. Our approach is multidisciplinary, inclusive, and responsive to local conditions.
